Eleven Men Killed by a Railway Accident in England.

A BALLAST TRAIN FALLS UPON WORK MEN BELOW THE TRACK.

The Bodies of the Dead Terribly Mutilated by the Falling Cars and Stone—A Large Number Injured—Panics at a Circus—Two Children Fatally Burned—Casualty Record.

LIVERPOOL, July 18.—News of a terrible disaster at Liverpool, a small town on the line of the Manchester Ship Canal, has been received here, but the particulars of the calamity are meager. A railroad runs along the side of the canal, and it appears that a number of laborers were at work repairing the embankment under the railroad, when a heavy train broke the temporary supports of the railroad and crashed down upon the workmen. Eleven men were killed outright, and a number of others injured, some of them seriously. The accident occurred near the mouth of the Mersey River.

At a later hour it was learned that the accident along the line of the Manchester Ship Canal was due to the fact that the points man, a boy 17 years of age, mistook the points and turned a railroad train, consisting of twenty-two wagons loaded with ballast, into a siding in a cutting. The boy, the prosecuting witness, appears to have gotten himself in a bad fix. The Clerk of the Peace summoned him for disturbing the peace and to answer charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. She accused him of being drunk and disorderly in her house, and states that he is a frequent visitor of her place. Last night, she said, he came into her house, disturbed her, and caused a disturbance, calling her by her name. She has other charges to bring against him which she intimated will be preferred to the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

The boy, however, remained about the court room all morning trying to borrow carfare from everyone in sight.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

TWO MEMBERS OF A FISHING PARTY KILLED BY A THUNDERSTORM.

OLATHE, Kan., July 18.—Several prominent young men of Merriam went on a fishing excursion to Big Blue River. Arriving in the evening, they took up their quarters in a hotel. In the morning about 4 o'clock they were awakened by a noise which they were told was a thunderstorm coming up. The entire party were standing under a large oak tree and, the lightning seeming so close, it was suggested that they seek some other place of shelter. They went to a house, but the boy's 17 years old, a son of J. M. Johnston, who would not go, when Charlie McDonald returned after him. McDonald had somehow taken hold of the lad to lead him to the hotel, but the boy, thinking descended directly upon them, instantly killing them both. It seemed to strike McDonald upon the top of the head and took the shoes from his feet, although no sign of life was visible except upon the floor. The boy seemed to have been struck upon his whole body, although not struck. The entire party, only a short distance away, were shocked, but upon inquiry found Miss Wise and her husband in a comfortable situation. She admitted that she was smacking him over the head with a brass water, and throwing several glasses at him. Her husband, a skin of ebony hue, had the court assessed him $6 and costs.

Dan Bawley and Arthur McElroy, two ducks, were arrested by Officers Lawton and Lanigan for loitering on the streets.

The officers blundered in preparing the charge, but the court, after a short trial, found the boy innocent.

Mr. WANAMAKER is doing his best to make up in amount for any lack of quality in his exhibitions.

The protest of the Mayor's friends in the Council against the conduct of the combine is a little thing as compared with the popular protest against the conduct of the Mayor.

The prospect of the biggest cotton crop ever produced indicates that the South will be as bad a field for the success of quack politicians this year as the North, East and West.

The State platforms which the Democrats have framed this year suggest that the farmers will not need a third party to secure all of their practical demands. The Democrats are hewing close to the line of popular interests.

SENATOR HALE, who is in a position to know, declares that Mr. BLAINE is coalescing and will soon be in harness. Whether he is right or not, everybody, without regard to party, will join in the hope that his belief is well founded.

AGAIN the report is circulated that Mr. QUAY will resign his chairmanship. But he is too courageous to resign while under fire, and oddly enough, he is too timid to take the steps necessary to stop the fire. Mr. QUAY is an astute politician.

NO DEMOCRATIC Governor has ever been elected in Ohio without Hamilton County. If CAMPBELL beats the precedent he will have claims to consideration as a candidate who can be depended upon to carry the country for the Democracy without New York.

THE anti-combine Councilmen argue that the Council should condemn any nominee whose personal character is admitted to be good, but on the other hand ought not the Mayor to nominate the man whose fitness has been proved and who is the first choice from the standpoint of public interest?

THE Democratic discontents of Ohio did not bolt the convention or give public notice of opposition to Gov. CAMPBELL and, therefore, any one of them who knifes CAMPBELL will be doubly false to the principles of his party and false to his own pledges. These men must vote the Democratic ticket or merit the contempt of all decent Democrats.

THE Georgia Legislature has adopted a law disqualifying physicians who drink to excess for the practice of their profession. It should hardly be necessary to pass a law of this kind. Physicians who are habitual drunkards disqualify themselves, and people who would employ them scarcely deserve the protection of the State. Still, any measure which is just that tends to elevate the medical profession and protect life and health from the crimes or blunders of men not fit to assume its duties and responsibilities is commendable.

A NEW and regular contributor has been added to the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH staff in the person of Mr. CHARLES B. LEWIS, better known as M. Quad. Mr. LEWIS is probably the best known newspaper man in the world. As a humorist and dispenser of homely wisdom in catchy form he is without a rival. His first humorous work was a series of sketches of "Bijah and His Honor," which made the Detroit police courts famous the world over. This was followed by the "Lime Kiln Club" series and the "Arizona Kicker." He is about to develop some new features of humor which cannot fail to add to his fame and delight the readers of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH.

THE MUNICIPAL DEADLOCK.

The protest of the thick-and-thin supporters of the Mayor against the conduct of the so-called Council combine in refusing to confirm certain of the Mayor's appointments contains an excellent exposition of the powers of the Mayor and Council in the matter of appointments, but, not a single good reason why any member of the Council should confirm any nomination of the Mayor which he may not be in harmony with the best interests of the city.

The important consideration of the interests of the city was entirely overlooked by the gentlemen who framed and signed the protest. The burden of their argument is that personal character is the sole test of fitness for office, and they claim that when the Mayor nominates a man whose character is unassailed, the Council should confirm the nomination. This view eliminates all question of public policy in the exercise of the Council's rejection privilege, and vastly diminishes the scope of its restraining power.

The right of the Council to reject is as perfect as the right of the Mayor to nominate and the duty of both to exercise their right with conscientious regard for public interests is imperative. The Council's right to reject was established as a whole-some check upon the executive, and the Councilmen are answerable to their constituents and constituents for the use of it. This right carries with it the privilege of using all lawful means to make it an effective safeguard. The Council cannot dictate to the Mayor, but it can prevent him from using his appointive power to serve unworthy persons or political purposes or other than public ends, and is interested in doing so.

A deadlock between the Mayor and the Council is to be deprecated. It tends to interrupt public business and demoralize the public service, but it is warranted if circumstances make it necessary to the protection of the city's interests. The Council's right to reject was established as a whole-some check upon the executive, and the Councilmen are answerable to their constituents and constituents for the use of it. This right carries with it the privilege of using all lawful means to make it an effective safeguard. The Council cannot dictate to the Mayor, but it can prevent him from using his appointive power to serve unworthy persons or political purposes or other than public ends, and is interested in doing so.

DR. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES says that if nine-tenths of the medicines in the world were thrown into the ocean mankind would be greatly benefited.

MAURICE BARREMORE says that the critics who cause him the greatest annoyance are those who praise him with faint dainties.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN loved dancing and thought that no man ever became too old to enjoy the pleasure of it.

EX-SENATOR MCDONALD was a great reader of novels. Taken all in, Scott was his favorite, but he always insisted that "Vanity Fair" was the greatest novel.

HANNIBAL HAMLIN, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and President Monroe all died on the Fourth of July. Mr. Morton ought to avoid fireworks and toy cannons as far as possible for a warrant.

RIDICULOUS STATEMANSHIP.

In one of his bursts of protective eloquence Maj. MCKINLEY remarks: "I am not against the foreign product. I am in favor of it for taxation, but I am for the domestic product for consumption."

There is a glittering appearance of fine patriotism about this sentence. It pictures the United States under the guidance of Mr. MCKINLEY and the administration of the Republican party reaching out into foreign lands and levying taxes upon their products and thus placing the outside world under tribute and compelling it to defray the expenses of our Government. It is possible that this sophistry would be imposed upon some unthinking people who will thus be made to revel in the pleasing illusion conjured up by the brain of the great protectionist.

But the cold light of fact and logic spoils the picture. In order to be taxed the foreign products must come to our custom-houses, and they are only brought there when they are to be consumed by the American people. When these products are brought through the custom-houses the tax is added to the original price, and the American consumers pay it. But in addition the amount of the tax is also added to American products for the benefit of the manufacturers, and the American consumers pay that too. Thus while Mr. MCKINLEY is prating about taxing foreign products and protecting American products, the American people are paying both taxes.

It seems absurd to have to teach Statesman MCKINLEY that products do not pay taxes and to combat him with primeless lessons in political economy, but his devotion to protection sometimes induces him to become ridiculous.

THE New York newspaper selected by the authorities for prosecution for violating the absurd secrecy law forbidding the publication of the details of executions is to be congratulated. There never was any reason or common sense in the law and the sooner its constitutionality is tested the better. The phrasical endeavors to keep men pure by withholding knowledge is too un-American to be palatable in this country. All newspapers which are worthy of the name publish all the news and do so in a sociological point of view, particularly when new methods are on trial as in the New York experiment.

THE Democratic society idea which BRUCE, GORMAN and other Democratic committeemen are urging as the best means of salvation for the party is not new. THOMAS JEFFERSON regarded the Democratic societies formed and maintained by the voters as the hope of the party and the bulwarks of sound principles. Under his wise and vigorous party management these societies were the chief instrumentalities in overthrowing Federalism and securing the long lease of power enjoyed by Democracy. The party invariably finds its best inspiration and guidance in JEFFERSON's principles and methods, and the closer it clings to them the nearer it lies to the hearts of the people.

Quay and the "Democrats."

From the New York World.

Mr. QUAY insists that the many Republicans of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania who propose to unseat him for his salvation of the Republic party are "Democrats" and "free traders." It may be true, but the conversion of most of them has been miraculously sudden. The majority of them voted for John Bardsley for Treasurer, and even for Dalmatier for Governor, on the ground that the 60 cent monopoly tariff would be easily endorsed by the election. honest men to these offices. Mr. QUAY really believes that none but Democrats and free traders are opposed to corruption in office!

Stop Further Effusion of Ink.

The battle of letters between Editor McClure and Biographer Nicolay, which has already resulted in frankish inkshed, is still fiercely raging. As the supply of writing material for the Mayor and Council in the case of appointments, but, not a single good reason why any member of the Council should confirm any nomination of the Mayor which he may not be in harmony with the best interests of the city.

LOVE AT THE HELM.

A Wedding on the City of Sheffield surprises the Passengers.

THE HAPPY ENDING OF A TENNESSEE RIVER EXCURSION.

Mr. J. F. Woolard and Miss May Warden Astonish Their Friends in St. Louis Society by a Sudden Marriage on a Steamboat While on a Summer Outing—Effect of the News.

"This is the care of your sister, and see that she enjoys herself," said Mr. J. F. Warden to his son, as he stood on the deck of the steamer City of Sheffield with his daughter's hand in his, speeding the two on their summer outing up the Tennessee River. Young Warden smiled and nodded at his father.

"I'll look after May; then you may depend on me," said he, and then looked fortively across the deck towards a friend of his, Mr. F. Woolard, and laughed again. The friend frowned and went away.

Just then Capt. J. E. Massengale, the manager of the St. Louis & Tennessee River Packet Line, which owns the boat, came on board and began to assign the party to their staterooms. Most of the rooms were the usual size of steamboat cabins, but several were larger than the rest.

John McLean, the Gramercy Park, was one of the passengers, with Mrs. Musick, and they were assigned one of the best of the rooms.

The others were distributed until there was only one left, and Capt. Massengale was uncertain what to do with this one.

"Now, Captain," said young Warden, "I claim that for Woolard and myself."

"All right," said the good-humored Captain, "but you know, I'm afraid, if the boat's got two ladies on down below."

Woolard and young Warden exchanged a look and a smile which Capt. Massengale did not understand, but he will not be in the dark very long.

THEY WERE LOVERS.

She left the foot of Locust street Saturday night, and she had no sooner swung out into the stream than it became apparent that they had a couple of hours to wait.

In Mr. Woolard and Miss Warden. They were together from morning till night. A hammock was swung across the deck on the upper deck, and there they used to sit for hours at a time, talking to each other, talking to Miss Warden belonged to a St. Louis banjo club, and had her instrument with her. Every night, after supper, the passengers would gather on the deck around her and she would sing sentimental ballads in a very good tenor voice.

Young Warden seemed to be in the seventh heaven of delight. It was plain that he had a perfect understanding with both Warden and his sister, and was helping along the tender affair with all his might. When Warden was not with Miss Warden he was with his brother, and they had long talks together, and talked over all the funny things which were very funny, judging from their laughter. The spectators of the little romance and did a good deal of talking about it, but the others, and their understanding of it, was that it was all right.

In an announcement of the engagement of the couple as soon as the boat got back to St. Louis.

Mr. Woolard, however, seemed to be a faster young man than they thought.

As the boat was up the Mississippi River, it stopped at Johnsonville and took on board Rev. Henry Thompson, a preacher of the Southern Methodist Church who was returning to his home at Savannah about two hundred miles further up the river.

The preacher had not been on board more than a few hours before Mr. Woolard and Mr. Warden had made his acquaintance. They had a talk together, and Mr. Woolard had a long interview with Miss Warden.

SURPRISED THE CAPTAIN.

"When the young couple sought out Capt. Joseph T. and asked him what would keep the boat long enough at the landing when he stopped at Savannah for Woolard and Miss Warden to walk up to the Methodist Church and get married."

"They mean it!" exclaimed the surprised Captain.

"Why of course I do," said Mr. Woolard.

"It will save us all the fuss and expense of a big wedding and we can return to St. Louis as husband and wife, instead of being engaged for a year or so as we would have to be."

"I'll keep the boat at the landing a whole day, if Miss Warden wants it," said the gallant Captain.

The news ran over the ship in a few minutes and the women all crowded around Miss Warden to ask her about it. She said that she and Mr. Woolard had loved one another for a long time, and for reasons of their own desired to get married before they got back to St. Louis.

THE MARRIAGE AT SAVANNAH.

The wedding had an informal council, and decided that Mr. Warden was a stern and unnatural parent, and the young couple were worthy of countenance in their venture.

So, when the boat went to Savannah and tied up, nearly all of the passengers followed the couple and the minister up the hill from the river to the church and saw the ceremony. One of the ladies said to the minister, "I wonder if the ceremony was over the passengers appointed a committee who scoured the town in a hurry and bought a pretty little gold and ivory clock as a wedding present."

The news of the wedding reached St. Louis by telegram, having been sent to a friend of his by Woolard, asking him to rent a flat on Delmar avenue, in which he wants to live.

The announcement of the wedding was given to the world in the both of the couple.

Mr. Warden is out of the city and will not return until to-morrow.

Differing predictions are made as to his return of the wife, but it is successful business man and Mr. Woolard's friends up to this time have been chiefly in society.

Miss Warden's admirers in her circle are the most to be pitied. They were numerous and none of them have ever thought of ranking Warden as the one favored especially by the young lady.

ATHRACITE PRICES.

A Sharp Break Looked for as a Result of Rate Cutting.

Now, New York, July 18.—There is some uneasiness among the managers of the anthracite coal producing companies as to the future price of coal. Most of the men deny that there is imminent danger of a sharp break and surmise it is expressed that the market will be in a condition to meet the demand of the coal.

Mr. Warden is out of the city and will not return until to-morrow.

COMPTON COURT-MARTIAL.

Investigation of the Colonel's Conduct at the Walls Walls Lynching.

WALLS WALLS, Wash., July 18.—The court-martial of Capt. Compton was adjourned yesterday.

The principal witness examined was the Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Blandford, who stated that he, in company with Sheriff McFarland, called on Col. Compton on the evening Hunt was lynched and asked him to keep the soldiers at the post. To this the Colonel answered that he would as soon think of making out a speech as of giving up his command.

Mr. Holden yesterday declined to discuss this incident. He suggested that the court-martial be adjourned until the next day.

Mr. Holden emphatically denied that he had quitted coal circles by stopping the deliveries of coal to the post, but he did not say that he had not done so.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

A New Name for Fire Chief—The Council Still Fighting.

The Council held a regular meeting last night with all members except Mr. Arnstein present. Mr. Bentzel tried to bring out his motion of last meeting, making the Sanitary Committee report, but as the records were still not in order, the motion was withdrawn. Mr. Bentzel was voted out in spite of his protests.

The Mayor, through Mr. Bentzel, sent in the name of John F. Barry, for Chief of the Fire Department.

Mr. Bentzel introduced a protest against the combination which some one got up for him. It was signed by Messrs. Culhane, James and W. H. Moore.

Mr. Hagan introduced a $50 relief bill, which, on motion of Mr. Cole, was filed.

Mr. Anderson introduced a bill authorizing the City Council to build an electric road.

The House sent over a resolution to appoint a stenographer in the Chain of Rocks investigation, which was adopted.

After several attempts were made to force motion by the anti-combine crowd, the Council adjourned.

Used Her Purse.

"You have deceived me, James. You have ruined my life. I'll never show my face at home after that." These words were uttered by a well dressed young woman to her male companion at the corner of Fourth and Chestnut about 11 o'clock last night. As she uttered them she brought down her hand with all her force and continued to beat him. He retreated, when the woman, driven by despair, began to weep bitterly. The man had been standing under the shadow of the Planters' House for some time, drying his tears and rings and bags, the rowing machines and other training apparatus. Fitzsimmons and Carroll were both very affable, and expressed renewed confidence in the project of victory. Carroll had been doing some miles training in the past three days, and his weight had run up to 154 pounds again this morning. He doesn't intend to take any more violent exercise, unless he should happen to get beat.

If he does he will take a fourteen-mile walk around the lake on Monday afternoon, and follow up with another hour in the sweater. In this way he can cut his weight about four pounds.

Speaking of the seconds, Carroll said: "Of course I shall be behind Fitz, but the other second has not been chosen. There is really little need of two more, but it is the natural thing to have a third in the ring."

Dempsey fight hardly spoke to him up to the fifth round, and then I merely cautioned him not to punch the Americans too much, as we were in the ring. I am convinced he will not do it. I am convinced Dempsey would not know how to handle Hall in the ring. The information came to us to-day, however, that he had decided to put Billy Woods, the Denver heavy-weight, and Chas. Remick had a date with him.

Cadets' Target Shooting.
—ANNAPOLE, Md., July 16.—The annual target practice of the second class of naval cadets has been concluded. It was conducted under the command of Lieut. R. R. Ingerson. The distance was 1,500 yards. Ingerson's target was a six-pointed star, 2 feet in diameter, 10 feet high, surrounded by a ball 2 feet in diameter. The projectile was a six-pointed star, from a rapid fire Hotchkiss gun. Ingerson showed by the combined marks of all the targets that he was a remarkable gunner. Cadet Frank L. Chadwick of Minnesota led the score, making 100, the highest possible score.

MONTEAL, July 15.—A scandal was caused in Jewish circles over the elopement of two members of the United Hebrew Dramatic Co. of New York, which has been playing before fashionable Jewish audiences here. Nathan Feldman, a young man, later wrote to a young Jewish lady in New York, asking her to come and marry him. The lady, Mrs. Bessie Lewellen, accepted. At the time Feldman became enamored with Miss Bessie Lewellen, leading lady of the company, and Wednesday the two fled to the United States. The pair are now in Albany.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 16.—No selection yet has been made of a referee for the coming fight for the Hall-Corbett bout on Saturday, July 18. It is stated by those in charge of the arrangements that it will be Jim Corbett of California, who is expected to arrive to-day. There was some objection to Joe Mannix, who has been referred in most of the contests of the Twin City Athletic Club, but for what reason is not known. The probability is that it was thought he was not strong enough to separate the fighters in a clinch.

Betting is becoming lively around the hotels and pool rooms, most of it being in favor of Fitzsimmons, and he is leading in the betting. Jimmy Corbett yesterday stated in the presence of a large number of auditors who took an outing at White Bear Lake, that although the New York papers stated he was not to be taken into account, he was to be the chief point of interest. It would be fight for blood and to a finish, explaining the animosity of the Eastern press as coming from sympathy for Dempsey, whom Fitzsimmons knocked out so easily at New Orleans.
